County to give funds to townships, city for recycling

Commissioners to pass on landfill money for local recycling programs

by Eric Gaertner
News Editor

Grayling Township took the first step, and Crawford County has followed it up in support of a recycling program at the township level.

Grayling Township Supervisor Terry Wright presented the idea that the Grayling Township board had started. Wright addressed the Crawford County Board of Commissioners at the Tuesday, April 15, county board meeting. In addition to explaining the Grayling Township plans, Wright also asked the county for funds to become involved in the recycling program.

The county commissioners agreed with the concept, and also agreed to provide some funding for each of the local municipalities in the county to start their own or join with other townships to handle recycling.

The early idea for the Grayling Township recycling program is to locate it next to the Little League fields where a current township trash compactor currently exists on North Down River Road. According to Wright, the preliminary estimates for the township's recycling program is it will cost at least $85,000.

The details of the way the recycling area will be set up has not been finalized, Wright said, but the idea is to have a four-stage set up. The proposed recycling program would give people a place to recycle such items as glass and paper.

"We (Grayling Township board) are really excited about the recycling program," Wright said. "We also want to see if the county would get involved."

The county commissioners decided they would get involved, and not just in Grayling Township but all county townships and the City of Grayling.

"I think it is very appropriate at this time to do this," Long said.

Long said the money that is being paid to the county for the sale of the landfill is supposed to go to a monitoring official and for recycling.

Long made a motion that the commissioners use part of the money to pay for the salary of an environmental monitor official and use the rest to return to the townships and City of Grayling. The motion called for the remaining funds to be distributed based on population.

Due to some concerns that some other items may arise to use the funds for, the commissioners passed the motion unanimously for a one-year period in which it would be revisited.

The Grayling Township board members gave a favorable consensus at their recent township meeting in regards to the concept of a recycling program in the township.

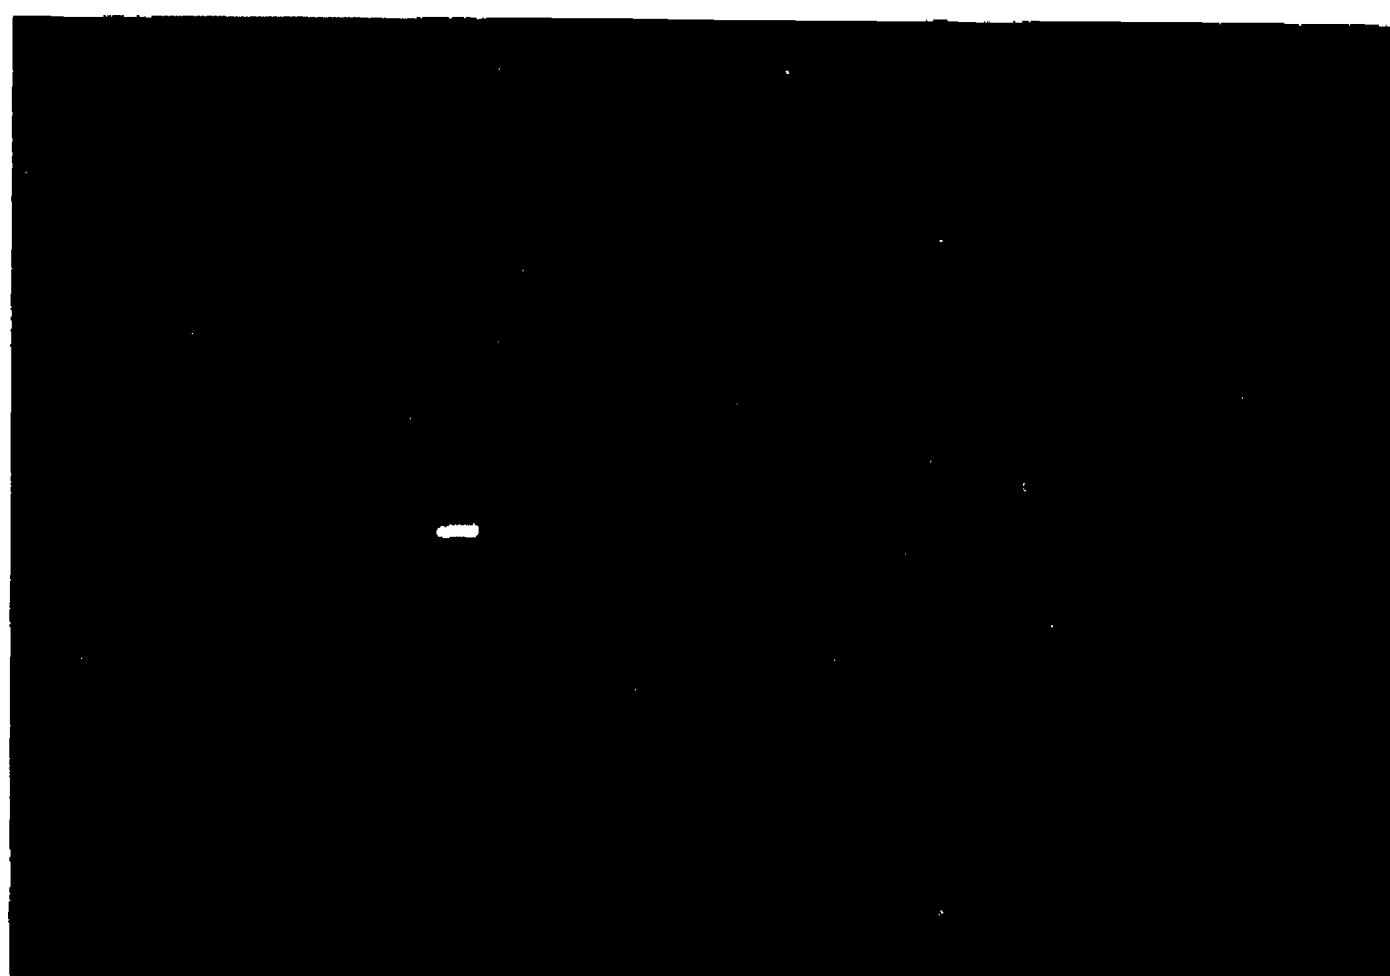

In related business, the county commissioners approved a motion to hire a resident as the county's monitoring official. Pat Merrill was chosen by the commissioners to serve as the "environmental watchdog" for Crawford County.

The position will be for a six-month probationary period, since it is a new position. The board and Merrill were scheduled to negotiate a salary for the new job.

Bob Smock, Personal and Labor Committee chairman, said in his opinion that Merrill was the best candidate for the position.

At the Ways and Means Committee meeting prior to the regular board meeting, the commissioners were given a presentation from members of the steering committee for a proposed county sportsplex. The board members passed a motion endorsing the steering committee's efforts in getting the issue on the ballot and bringing it to the voters for their consideration.

CLEAN-UP TIME—Most people do spring cleaning at home, but these volunteers, mostly Grayling Kiwanians, showed up at Hanson Hills on Saturday, April 12, to scrub the gymnasium. ## Pros and cons of proposed country club

South Branch residents packed the meeting room with concerns

by Eric Gaertner
News Editor

It was standing room only at the monthly South Branch Township board meeting on Tuesday, April 8, and most of the residents were in attendance to discuss the proposed private golf community, Forest Dunes.

The Citizens Environmental Action Coalition (CEAC) was recently formed by some South Branch Township residents who are concerned about the 1,200-acre development. CEAC members started the discussion of the private golf community agenda item.

Tom Kozlowski, who is the CEAC spokesperson, told the meeting audience that coalition members have been busy gathering information on the proposed golf community. He said the coalition has checked with a number of organizations, such as the U.S. Forest Service and the Department of Natural Resources, in compiling data about environmental issues surrounding the development.

Some concerns raised by township residents and the coalition members include sewage, fire protection, law enforcement, water quality and other issues which could arise with the golf community being located at the former South Branch Ranch location.

One township resident told the township board that he moved from Westland and did so to get away from out-of-control development. He wanted to know the board's stance on future development of the township.

The township board members explained that in zoning and planning measures for the township, the process is done at the county level. Any township matter involving these items must go through the Crawford County Planning Commission and Zoning officials.

Debra Hamburg, CEAC president, told the township board and residents that a list of studies has been given to the Forest Dunes development group. The list includes a soil study, economic impact study and wetland study.

According to Hamburg, CEAC will keep watching to make sure that these studies are conducted and completed.

"The best thing for us to do is to keep coming to these meetings to show that we are concerned," Hamburg said.

Since the township meeting, CEAC has already scheduled a separate public meeting to further discuss the concerns of the project. The meeting will be held at the Craf Center at 606 Lake Street in Roscommon on Wednesday, April 23, at 7 p.m.

"The best thing for us to do is to keep coming to these meetings to show that we are concerned."

—Debra Hamburg,
CEAC President

The purpose of the meeting is to allow residents to express any concerns of the development, said Leane Tingstad, CEAC's public relation officer. The group will also provide any additional information that it has gathered at the meeting.

The attorney for the Forest Dunes project was originally on the township agenda, but called earlier and cancelled. Some people were concerned that no one attended representing the development.

Susan Topp, attorney for the development, said the developers anticipated having more information, but the some of the studies were not completed. She said she did not want to go to the meeting with information that was not completed.

"We will be going back to the township in May," Topp said. "We plan on making an application for a preliminary site plan in May."

Developers make plans for Forest Dunes project

by Eric Gaertner
News Editor

"The Michigan Project", as it was originally called by the development partners, has been discussed for almost two years now.

The Forest Dunes and Country Club, as the project is called now, is currently in the planning stages. According to development officials, the planning stage involves completing the State of Michigan, Crawford County and South Branch Township required entitlement and regulatory programs.

Forest Dunes Golf and Country Club is a proposed 1,200-acre private, residential golf community, with a selling point to its possible residents of having year-round activities for the entire family. The location of the development is where the South Branch Ranch used to be in South Branch Township.

The centerpiece of the community will be two distinct 18-hole championship golf courses — the White Tail course designed by PGA Senior Touring Professional Tom Weiskopf and the Wild Turkey course. The designer of the second course will be selected at a later date.

Gina Canzonetta, director of communications for the Forest Dunes project, and Susan Topp, attorney for the project, met with some area media members on Friday, April 11, for a session about the development.

Development officials are currently going through the entitlement process, Canzonetta said. People are still working on getting all of the various studies completed.

One of the studies which will be completed by the company is the impact the incoming golf community will have on the township and surrounding communities. A group will be retained to work on an economic impact statement.

"The economic impact statement will show the potential impact of the development on South Branch Township, Crawford County, Roscommon, Grayling and the entire area," Canzonetta said. "We will have to have the statement done for the entitlement process."

Weiskopf, who is from Ohio, is excited about working with Midwest topography to design the golf course, Canzonetta said.

Weiskopf has said he would like to have Forest Dunes' White Tail course ranked within the top five golf courses in Michigan. Weiskopf has designed more than 25 golf courses in the United States and Scotland.

The golf course designer is not the only one involved with prior experience. Forest Dunes is being developed by Forest Dunes L.L.C. — a joint venture between Fairway Partners L.L.C. and Barrett-Petersen L.L.C., both of Scottsdale, Ariz.

Two members of Fairway Partners L.L.C. have been involved with the development, ownership and management of some resorts in Arizona, Colorado and California.

According to Topp, the designers are working with the regulatory agencies, such as the Department of Natural Resources, to get their opinions on some of the design concepts. She pointed out that this development group is doing extra items to make the design environmentally safe.

One of the ways the development is attempting to be environmentally safe is by working in conjunction with Audubon International. The development is attempting to attain the Audubon International Gold Signature. This would mean the development of a set of principles to make it compatible with the environment.

The three requirements of the Audubon Signature include: commit to the principles of sustainability, complete and implement a Natural Resource Management Plan, or have Audubon International prepare an individual Ecological Design.

With a possible special election date of Sept. 9 fast approaching, the steering committee of the proposed Crawford County Sportsplex is beginning to make some final decisions for the project.

The steering committee members were told that they need to have the actual ballot language for the proposed bond issue in the county clerk's office by June 1 to have the Sept. 9 special election.

The large recreation center is being proposed to have an ice rink, all-purpose gymnasium, a recreation swimming pool, a wading pool, a conference room and a walking track. Other proposals for the sportsplex include a weight room, pro shop, day care center and racquet ball courts.

One issue that has already been finalized is the site of the proposed project. If the bond issue is approved, the sportsplex would be built on county property located at the corner of Old-27 and M-93 in Grayling Township next to the Crawford County Fairgrounds. The fair board has given the sportsplex committee the approval to use the land.

According to some of the committee members, they would like to have the steering committee formally organized at their next meeting. Tom Ritter, one of the committee members, said having the committee organized will give members a chance to move forward with the project and spreading the word.

The group also was scheduled to appoint a president or spokesperson of the steering committee.

Crawford County Clerk Sandra Moore and former County Clerk Beth Weiland were among the 16 persons who attended the sportsplex committee meeting on April 9. The two people helped the group decided between a millage or bond issue for this project.

Weiland explained to the committee members that it would be better to go for a bond issue rather than a millage proposal. A millage proposal had been discussed by the committee, but a final millage rate had not been determined.

If the proposed sportsplex is funded through a bond issue, then the amount of money the sportsplex will get will remain the same over the years, Weiland said. While the money coming in remains the same, the actual money paid by each individual taxpayer will come down with an increase in the SEV over time. This would not be the case with a millage.

Moore and Weiland also advised the committee members that they ask for permission to go for a bond issue from the Crawford County Board of Commissioners.

With a proposed Sept. 9 election, the committee will begin spreading the word about the project. One suggestion was to make a video of the Otsego County Sportsplex to show various groups and organizations in Crawford County.

The idea also was mentioned that a public show or meeting be held to show the video and discuss the project.

Final travelogue features Canadian Maritime

On Thursday, April 24, the sixth presentation in the award-winning Travel and Adventure Series will be held in the Joseph Stripe Auditorium at Grayling High School at 7:30 p.m. Jim and Reva Cole will be there to take the audience on a trip through the Canadian Maritime, from the eastern-most province of Newfoundland to the mainland province of New Brunswick. Each province is different and almost a nation unto itself. The country is thus a land of colorful differences that reaches its peak in the eastern provinces.

Jim Cole's vast interests in the world of photography, public speaking, history, nature and adventure has led him to a very successful career in producing and presenting travelogue films.

While still in high school, he was a news commentator for a local radio station where he not only on-air time but also produced and directed the news shows.

His knowledge of film making started during his tour of duty with the U.S. Army where he learned the skills of cinematography under difficult and dangerous conditions. Following his military experience, Cole studied photography in both Chicago and Detroit, also, being a speech champion in Toastmasters International brought him many opportunities for public speaking.

Cole has received advanced degrees from Ohio State University and spent 30 years as an executive in the business world. During this time in corporate life he produced, directed, edited and presented training films and traveled extensively for their preparation.

Since entering the travelogue field, his films have been enthusiastically received by audiences from The National Geographic in Washington, D.C. in the East to The Sunday Mañnee Series in Sacramento, Calif. in the West; from Michigan State University in the North to Louisiana State University in the South and more than 100 other series across the United States and Canada.

This is an exciting and extremely interesting career for Jim Cole and his wife, Reva, who assists in all phases of production and presentation. Their shows have a warmth and excitement so apparent to audiences, that the Coles are welcomed back for return visits.

Doors open at 6:45 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. show. Refreshments will follow. Tickets at $3.50 for senior citizens and students and $4 for adults may be purchased by calling 348-8641 ext. 123 or at the door. The Travel and Adventure is made possible with the support of Fick & Sons of Grayling in partnership with the CASD Community Education Program. For this performance, tickets may be purchased from any Project Graduation Committee Member at a reduced price. Proceeds from ticket sales through the committee will go toward the Project Graduation event.

South Branch meeting draws residents' concerns

Another study which Hamburg said will be asked by CEAC of the development is a traffic or road impact study.

Jim Briney, managing director of The Road Commission For Crawford County, was at the township meeting to talk about road commission issues, but also addressed information about the Forest Dunes project.

Briney said he told the development officials three major items which will occur involving the road commission. "Number one, we are not putting up one nickel for roads involved with the project. Number two, the roads must meet our minimum standards. Number three, we have no intention of adopting these roads (within the development) into the county road system in the future."

Briney also told those in attendance at the township meeting that the developers have been discussing the possibility of paying for improvements to Chase Bridge Road, the major county road which leads to the development site.

Appeals court to decide on local libel suit

A three-judge panel of the Michigan Court of Appeals hear oral arguments on Wednesday, April 9, in Lansing in the case of a former Crawford County commissioner against two Grayling men and a former state representative.

Robert McLachlan Sr., the former commissioner, sued the three residents for libel after they alleged that the former commissioner had a conflict of interest. The alleged conflict of interest occurred when McLachlan was still commissioner, and involved the sale of the landfill from Crawford County to City Environmental Services of Waters.

The three men named in the libel suit are former state representative Stephen Dresch, and David Kneff and Joseph Callewaert, both of Grayling.

The plaintiff and defendants both had their attorneys' oral arguments heard and now must wait for a ruling. According to a Michigan Court of Appeals official, those involved are now at the stage of waiting for the judges to hand down their decision.

The case is in the Michigan Court of Appeals after an Osego County Court ruled in December 1995 that allegations about the former commissioner's involvement in a landfill deal were not libelous. Probate Court Judge Richard Liedel, sitting by assignment in 46th Circuit Court, dismissed the defamation claims of McLachlan.

Grayling attorney Monte Burnmeister represents McLachlan in this matter. The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) accepted the case on behalf of the defendants. The case was argued by ACLU volunteer attorney Neal Bush of Detroit.

An ACLU official described the reasons he believes this is an important case.

"This case is about one of the most important purposes of free speech in a democracy — the right to criticize government and the actions of government officials," said ACLU of Michigan Legal Director Paul Denenfeld. "Government officials should respond to criticism in the public arena, not by trying to intimidate private citizens from raising questions about their elected officials."

Burnmeister, who represents McLachlan, said he did not wish to comment until the judges make their decision.

Rivard receives scholarship

Rebecca Rivard, a Northwood senior from Bay City, was granted the Yeo & Yeo Scholarship(s) for the 1996-97 academic year.

Rebecca is the daughter of Pamela and Ronald Bouse of Grayling.

Private Donor Scholarships at Northwood are awarded by the scholarship committee of the college to those students who meet the requirements specified by individual scholarship donors. These scholarships represent support from organizations, foundations, and individuals who show concern and interest for student achievements and are committed to the future of Northwood University.

Private donor scholars, who represent Northwood University and the scholarship donor, participate in community and campus projects. This year more than $500,000 was donated to 320 qualified Northwood students.

MISS PHOTOGENIC — Brandi McClain, ninth grader at Crawford AuSable Schools, won the title of Miss Photogenic at the Applause Dance Competition held at Waverly High School in Lansing. Brandi is a member of Louise Tournaud's School of Dance and part of the dance competition team which was competing. She is the daughter of Dave and Gayle McClain.

Grayling rest area to be named for retiree

Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) engineer Monte Endres has retired as both MDOT District 2 engineer and executive secretary of the Mackinac Bridge Authority. As the first person to hold the two positions concurrently, he helped usher in improvements in customer service, engineering design, safety and cost effectiveness.

In honor of his many contributions to Michigan transportation spanning 38 years, MDOT will honor Endres by naming the northbound I-75 Grayling rest area for him. He and his wife, Lynda, reside at nearby Higgins Lake.

"Monte did a commendable job wearing both hats during a time of great challenge and change for the department," said State Transportation Director Robert Welke. "His leadership, expertise and commitment to our customers was evident in everything he did and we will miss him."

For the past four years, Endres was chief administrator for the department's highway construction, maintenance and traffic and safety operations in the six northeast upper peninsula counties of Alger, Chippewa, Delta, Luce, Mackinac and Schoolcraft. He championed the use of a computer technology and electronic communications district wide to improve efficiency and reduce product delivery time.

During the same period Endres also served as chief operating officer for the Mackinac Bridge, overseeing its entire operation. He supervised various safety improvements to the five-mile span, including installation of wind sensors, changeable message signs, new approaches, reconstruction of the toll plaza, and plans for installing closed circuit monitoring cameras later this year. The renovated toll plaza features longer-lasting European-style concrete pavement and energy efficient toll booths that enable cars to move through the toll area quicker with less fuel waste and pollution.

Prior to his recent positions, Endres was District 4 engineer in Alpena. He also served as administrator of MDOT's capital outlay program, during which time he supervised $10 million in storage, crew and maintenance building construction, allowing for faster, more efficient improvements to be made to the state's transportation system.

Endres was the department's liaison to the Blue Water, Mackinac and International bridges for seven years. As a member of the International Bridge Task Force, he was instrumental in deciding the destiny of the bridge in the year 2000 when bonds to build it are paid in full.

MILITARY NEWS

Nicholas Brewer

Navy Seaman Recruit Nicholas S. Brewer, son of Larry G. Ashton of Grayling, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Brewer completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis is also placed on physical fitness.

Brewer and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values — honor, courage and commitment — and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct. Brewer joins 55,000 men and women who will enter the Navy this year from all over the country.

Men and women train together from their first day in the navy, just as they do aboard ships and at shore commands around the world. To reinforce the team concept, Brewer and other recruits also were trained in preventing sexual harassment and ensuring equal opportunity.

Even as the naval service gets smaller over the next few years, highly motivated young people like Brewer are still finding an opportunity to improve their knowledge and education as they become part of the most highly technical naval force in history. This year alone, the Navy will have more than 57,000 job openings and opportunities, most of which include guaranteed training. For more information on an exciting career in the Navy call 1-800-USA-NAVY or visit the internet at www.Navyjobs.com.

Brewer is a 1996 graduate of Arthur Hill High School in Saginaw.

Garbage bill could regulate landfills

by Kristyn Sobier
Capital News Service

A bill to forbid other states and countries to export their garbage to Michigan landfills is awaiting supporting legislation's passage in Congress.

The state proposal, introduced in January by Sen. Loren Bennett (R-Canton Township) passed the Senate but can't move further until Congress finishes its debate, then introduces and passes legislation.

Due to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, states are forbidden to regulate trash flow.

According to the Department of Environmental Quality, from 1995 to 1996 almost 14 percent of the solid waste put into Michigan landfills came from other states.

Michigan receives trash from 10 states, including Ohio and Indiana and as far away as Texas and Georgia.

However, Canada, the largest supplier of the out-of-state trash, sent nearly 2.7 million cubic yards of waste into Michigan landfills during that one year.

Those areas dump their garbage in Michigan landfills because they don't have their own landfill space and don't want to build new ones, said Bill Sullivan, Bennett's chief of staff.

"Michigan has established more landfills and put a ban on yard waste, which has created a lot of excess capacity," said Sullivan. "But now we're being penalized."

The bill does not include liquid waste, but Bennett plans to add it to the proposal as soon as it goes to the House. It was an oversight that wasn't included in the original plan, Sullivan said.

"Sen. Bennett's bill is a good idea, except it is mostly symbolic," said Mike Garfield, director for the Ecology Center in Ann Arbor.

Garfield expects the proposal will send a message to Congress that Michigan wants the power to regulate waste coming into the state. Counties are already able to keep waste out, Garfield said. The bill would take the power from the counties and give it to the state. "Symbolic legislation is sometimes useful and we support that," he said.

Sen. Alma Smith (D-Salem Township) has added an amendment to the bill stating that states and countries exporting waste must follow the Michigan landfill requirements.

"Why should Michigan force its citizens to separate their tires and batteries and then tell out-of-state sources they don't have to separate their garbage?" Garfield asked.

James Sharp, vice president of community affairs at the City Management Corporation, declined to comment. The corporation hauls waste.

Gas tax going up? Maybe twice

IS A HIGHER gas tax in the future for Michigan motorists?

It's more than likely. In fact, gas taxes could go up twice. Advocates of higher gas taxes are active on both state and national levels, and it's possible the pump price could be primed, and then primed again.

Gov. John Engler is not on the higher gas tax bandwagon, of course. His position is higher taxes only as a last resort, if at all.

Instead, again in an April speech to the Michigan Municipal League, Mr. Engler trotted out his own highway improvement program pretty much as outlined in his State of the State address in January.

It does not include higher gas taxes.

IN A NUTSHELL, Mr. Engler proposes plunking $300 million a year into highways from a combination of state government spending efficiencies and funds management, plus more money from the federal government.

In his talk to municipal officials, the Governor did not rule out higher state gas taxes.

He didn't suggest them, either.

Several statewide groups back higher gas taxes earmarked for road improvement. The politically powerful Michigan Farm Bureau, for example, supports a 7-cent per gallon state increase, estimated to produce about $350 million a year.

A major problem with a state gas tax hike is the formula for dividing road funds among state, city and county road interests.

Higher taxes are never popular; although it has many supporters, neither is a gas tax hike.

A late March survey by a Lansing political polling firm showed 58 percent opposed to a higher gas tax, and 39 percent in favor. Of those opposed, according to the sample, 44 percent were "strongly opposed."

WITH SPRING at hand, road deterioration will increase, and so will discontent among motorists, and Gov. Engler will be blamed for most of the problems.

That may not be right, but that's the way it is.

Potholes in mall parking lots, for example, are not the governor's fault.

Neither are potholes in city streets and on county roads.

But a pothole is a pothole, and drivers don't like them. They want them fixed, and the governor is the obvious target of choice.

If roads don't get better rather quickly, that minority in favor of taxes to fix roads may become a majority. And, after a steady drumbeat of public and political abuse for the condition of roads in general — even if it emanates from that minority 39 percent who support a gas tax hike — Gov. Engler may review his stance on taxes as a source for road improvements.

MEANWHILE, down in Washington, things are not standing still, highway-wise.

President Clinton included highways in his proposed spending plan sent to Congress. But U.S. Rep. John Dingell of Wayne indicated Michigan may not be spending enough on highways to qualify for the maximum it could receive under the Clinton proposal.

According to a report in Gannett newspapers, Mr. Dingell suggested Michigan may have to raise its state gas tax to qualify for additional federal highway dollars.

Then there's another plan floating around Washington, attributed to Sen. Connie Mack of Florida.

Mr. Mack wants to raise the federal gas tax by 6.5 cents, and spend 2 cents of the increase on interstate highways and apply the other 4.5 cents to reducing the federal deficit.

The net result of all this concern about the condition of America's roads and highways, and how to fix them, could well end up being not one but two gas tax increases.

Now, that would present a real dilemma for Mr. Engler and his image makers:

Would it be better to be known as "The Pothole Governor" or "The Gas Tax Governor?"

Some days you just can't win for losing.

Hanson Hills has come a long way

To the editor,

In "23 years ago" in the April 3 edition of the Crawford County Avalanche the first line reads "Bear Mountain resort was ordered boarded up."

It is incredible to think of what has happened here, at Hanson Hills, since then. It has taken many volunteers, lots of financial support and a lot of people who really care about Hanson Hills, our youth, and our community to build it up to what we have today.

We have a tremendous positive momentum happening at Hanson Hills in 1997. We see the potential here and are constantly striving to make it better for you.

I'm writing this letter to congratulate Crawford County on saving Hanson Hills for all of us to enjoy and on the exciting future we have here.

'Concern' is the key word for environmental group

To the editor,

My name is Kevin Tingstad, a resident of South Branch Township and a member of CEAC, the Citizen's Environmental Action Coalition. My family has lived in Crawford County for six years. My children attend the public schools in the Gerrish-Higgins District. We pay local taxes, and shop locally. We enjoy the sense of community and friendliness of our neighbors on Chase Bridge Road. We also enjoy the outdoors.

And we are concerned.

We are concerned regarding the ethics and legality of the land sales from the DNR to the township, and from there to private developers. We suspect several inconsistencies, and our State Representative Allen Lowe and Attorney General Frank Kelley have been contacted.

We are concerned about possible ecological problems a project of this proportion presents in an environmentally sensitive area. Several environmental action groups have been contacted and are lending us their support. These include the Sierra Club, MUCC, The Nature Conservancy, Top of the Mitt Watershed, Anglers of the AuSable, Headwaters Land Conservancy, The Land Use Institute, and the Audubon Society (which is not the same as Audubon International, the organization that will give the Forest Dunes golf courses its "signature").

We are concerned, and so are all of the DNR and U.S. Forest Service officials we've spoken with regarding this project.

Someday when my children's children come to visit grandma and grandpa and ask about how things used to be, I want to be able to say the Mason Tract has always been there and the forests have always been there and they are yours to enjoy.

There are no gates and no membership fees. So take a walk, drop a line, or canoe the river. Let's leave this little bit of wilderness alone and save it for future generations to enjoy.

We are concerned, and if you are too, we can be contacted at home if you have further questions regarding this project.

Kevin Tingstad
South Branch Township

Break out the snow shovel, it's time for spring sports

They call baseball players "the Boys of Summer". Well hopefully things start warming up around here so some games can be played.

The baseball players and all of the other high school athletes are supposed to be competing in the high school spring sports season, but the weather is not cooperating. The winter season is over, but it seems that the cold and snowy conditions have kept the athletic teams inside for most of the "spring".

High school athletes who compete in sports from softball to golf and from tennis to track are even being forced inside for practice. These athletes who have played in years past know that the weather can affect some of their preseason work, but now the snow, cold and wet field conditions are keeping the high school athletes indoors for practices, too.

This year's bad weather will force teams to step out of the confines of a gymnasium and immediately outside into games and meets. The athletes will have to be ready this year with the lack of outdoor practice. The participants also must be prepared for stretches of back-to-back games and meets due to early season cancellations.

Correction

In last week's Avalanche the foundation which provided money to the Crawford County Habitat for Humanity should have been called the Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation. The people on hand for the donation of funds were Jon Vance, representing Weyerhaeuser; Rick Anderson, Habitat board member; Sister Naomi, president of the Habitat for Humanity board; and Kurt Tucker, treasurer of the Habitat.

The Avalanche apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused.

This also makes it hard for northern Michigan school's athletic directors. These people will be busy cancelling, postponing and rescheduling different athletic events. Good luck.

To prove just how different this weather is from normal, look at the Major League Baseball season. The pros have even had some of their games postponed because of cold temperatures and/or snow. Rain usually is the one weather condition which puts a halt to professional baseball games, but not snow and cold temperatures. This isn't supposed to be hockey, although some Major League teams have played games under those conditions.

I'm Tiger Woods. No, I'm Tiger Woods. No, I'm Tiger Woods.

Those kids in the Nike television commercial keep saying they are Tiger Woods. These are little kids, swinging a golf club, carrying a golf bag or walking the fairway. If the officials at Nike ever redo the commercial, they will have to get little green jackets for all of them.

That's right. To be Tiger Woods these days, a person needs a green jacket.

Tiger won the Masters Golf Tournament this past weekend, but most of you probably know that. According to the TV ratings, one in every five television viewers tuned in to at least catch the final half hour of Tiger's first Majors victory.

Tiger is amazing. He dominated the other top golfers in the world. When the nearest competitor is 12 strokes behind, then domination might not even be a strong enough word.

Tiger is being hailed as the next great golfer, if not the greatest of all time. He also is supposed to draw young people to the sport of golf. It is true that he will make some youngsters into golf fans, but he also will draw older fans. The fairways and greens were surrounded by youngsters and adults. So, it is probably more correct to say, "Tiger is going to draw in all kinds of fans and make golf more popular."

I would imagine that now people won't just be hearing the phrase "I'm Tiger Woods" on that TV commercial, but also out on the golf course. People will be calling themselves Tiger Woods after they smack a long drive, sink a huge putt or if they are wearing green. That will be the closest I ever get to being Tiger Woods. Fore!

Speaking of Tiger. There are a bunch of Tigers who have been surprising people on the baseball field.

The Detroit Tigers have gotten off to a good start, right around the .500 mark. Don't expect the winning trend to continue, but they will be better than last year and more exciting to watch.

The Tigers' roster has some very good young hitters on it. Tony Clark, Bobby Higginson and some other young players are developing into the nucleus of a future good ball club. Detroit still does not have pitching, but the general manager has done a good job so far, so he will continue to develop pitching prospects.

One thing is for sure. A trip to Tiger Stadium will usually mean a scoring fest for one of the two teams or both. Fans won't have to worry too much about traveling to Tiger Stadium to watch a boring 1-0 shutout, because at least one of the two squads should have a good day at the plate.

The hockey playoffs are here. The race for the Stanley Cup is on.

This year's regular season for hockey was great and the playoffs should be no different. There should be a lot of hard hitting and emotional play in the playoff games.

Western Jazz Quartet closes award winning series

On Tuesday, April 22, the Western Jazz Quartet will return to the Joseph Stripe Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. to help close the 1996-97 award winning Learning Through Music Concert Series on a Jazzy note.

The Western Jazz Quartet is a resident faculty ensemble in the School of Music at Western Michigan University. Formed in 1974, the quartet combines performing and teaching with uncommon success as they promote jazz music and jazz education through a very active schedule of tours, concerts and workshops. In 1992 jazz legend Billy Hart joined the quartet, bringing 30 years of playing experience with nearly every major jazz artist.

The Western Jazz Quartet has performed from Boston to Los Angeles, and has toured several times to Europe, South and Central America. The quartet has been featured at festivals in Canada and the U.S., and at a week of performances at La Villa in Paris. The quartet was honored with sponsorship by the Arts America Program of the United States Information Agency which arranged a three-week tour of South America in the summer of 1993, with concerts in Brazil, Argentina, and Uruguay. The quartet has also toured Poland twice with pianist Wlodek Pawlik and drummer Billy Hart, and a third time with Randy Brecker. The group has released two CDs in the U.S., Firebird (1992) and Blue Haris (1995). Both received Five-Star reviews in Down Beat Magazine. In 1995, the group released a live CD in Europe on the Koch International label with pianist Wlodek Pawlik. Live at the Jazz Club Akwarium, and in 1996, a second European release with Randy Brecker, Turtles, on Plonia Records.

In April of 1996, the Quartet was invited to tour Thailand in honor of the 50th anniversary of the king's accession to the throne.

The program for this concert will feature selections from their albums and CDs, and will include the works of jazz greats as Duke Ellington and Dave Brubeck, as well as original pieces composed by quartet member Trent Kynaston.

Host families needed for student exchange

Youth For Understanding (YFU) International Exchange volunteers are actively selecting host families for the over 400 high school aged exchange students who will arrive in August to begin an exchange experience.

YFU is one of the largest student exchange programs in the world, having exchanged over 150,000 teenagers since 1951. Each year over 400 students from over 30 countries in Western and Eastern Europe, Latin America and the Pacific rim are placed with qualified Michigan host families.

Host families provide three meals a day and a separate bed, and all the tender loving care they would provide their own children as the student becomes a family member for a year. Students attend local high schools and participate in family, school and community activities.

YFU provides placement and supervision as needed throughout the exchange year, travel arrangements, insurance, orientation programs and other necessary support networks of 150 local volunteers throughout Michigan.

Couples with and without children at home, as well as one-parent families may volunteer as host families. Anyone interested should contact Vicki Borchers at 517-275-4886 or the Michigan YFU office at 1-800-872-0200. Visit YFU's home page at <http://www.yfu.org>.

Most families who have hosted an exchange student think very highly of the positive impact the experience had on their lives and their own children's lives.

Many go on to host another student and many others become YFU volunteers.

YFU is one of the oldest, largest and most widely respected non-profit intercultural exchange organizations in the world. It is dedicated to international understanding and world peace through exchange programs for high school students.

More than 175,000 students have been hosted by a family. One of the more than 2,500 professionally-trained volunteers works with each student and family, providing support and guidance every step of the way. Professional counselors and language tutors are also available when needed.

Most YFU international students live in the United States for about 11 months, from approximately mid-August through early July. With the exception of possible YFU-arranged field trips, the student will be a part of the family for their entire stay.

All YFU students have studied spoken and written English for at least two years. An English proficiency test must be passed before being accepted into the program.

YFU students have their own medical insurance and bring their own spending money.

USO dance planned for May 2 in Grayling

On Friday evening, May 2, area residents are in for a real treat when the Tuxedo Junction Big Band performs in a re-creation of what it was like to attend a USO dance in London during World War II. at the Grayling Holiday Inn Evergreen Room.

Featuring some of the leading musicians in southeastern Michigan, the band will perform from the original charts of Arty Shaw, Glen Miller, and Tommy Dorsey. The band dresses in authentic U.S. Army uniforms, right down to the correct military patches worn by the Glen Miller Band in 1944. This combination of sound and costume will create a nostalgic evening of dining and dancing that will be entertaining and exhilarating. For those who lived through this time period, it will truly be a trip down memory lane.

For those not quite old enough to remember, it will be a rare opportunity to see how music and world events affected the lives of people.

A complete buffet consisting of breaded shrimp, steak, chicken stir fry, assorted vegetables, salad bar, and pie a la mode, includes non-alcoholic beverage and dessert will be served beginning at 6:30 p.m. Doors open at 6 p.m. and a cash bar will be available throughout the evening. Tickets at $22.50 per person may be purchased by calling the CASD Community Education Cultural Events Box Office at 348-7641 ext. 123 or 120.

The CASD Cultural Events series is made possible with the support of area businesses and corporations.

FOOT NOTES

by Ronald K. Olm, D.P.M.

Stress fracture double trouble

Stress fractures have become more and more common ever since the beginning of the running and aerobic care back in the '70s. Despite all the attention that's been focused on the problem, and the advances in athletic footwear, two types of stress fractures remain a growing problem. These are fractures of the metatarsals (the foot's long bones leading to each toe) and sesamoids (sections of bones that lie within tendons on the bottom of the foot). Symptoms of a metatarsal stress fracture usually include swelling on the top of the foot and sharp pain above the break. The symptoms of a sesamoid stress fracture are not always as clear, but the tendons that pull on the broken bones generally lead to inflammation, pain, and further separation of the broken pieces. Improper treatment of either condition can lead to more pain and mobility problems. Athletically inclined or not, no one can afford to play games with fractures and other foot injuries, diseases and disorders. Podiatric problems demand the attention of a professional. Don't let foot problems keep you on the sidelines. Consult with us at GRAND TRAVERSE FOOT & ANKLE CENTER, P.C., 1209 E. 8th Street, Traverse City. We offer treatment of specific problems, as well as preventative care to keep you on your feet. Phone: 922-9100 & 800-988-7440. Offices in Traverse City, also Nankaa Memorial Health center Monday & Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

P.S. Stress fractures can also occur in the middle of the foot, although they are fairly rare.

Religious Deception

Holy Scriptures give the key to avoiding religious deception. (Isaiah 5:20) "Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!" We must beware of all Satanic attempts to reverse our beliefs about good and evil. (2 Corinthians 2:11) "Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices." Deception results when people do not understand, love, and trust God's truth. (2 Thess. 2:9), but instead, reject the word of God for human wisdom. (Jeremiah 8:9)

From the Heaven's Gate web site we read their ridicule of normal Christian faith and life which they characterize as: "Above all, be married, a good parent, a reasonable church goer, buy a house, pay your mortgage, pay your insurance, have a good line of credit, be socially committed, and graciously accept death with the hope that 'through His shed blood,' or some other equally worthless religious precept, you will go to Heaven after your death."

One might think about these questions: Is it better to be castrated and live in a celibate cult than to be happily married? Is it better to abandon your spouse and children to live in a cult than to be a good parent? Is it more reasonable to learn truth in a Bible-believing church than to be deceived in a suicide cult? Is it better to rest in your own home than to rot in a rented mansion? Is it better to be financially honest and secure, or to leave the burden of your debts upon other people? Is it more reasonable to care about others in society, or to live in seclusion and selfishness? Which is the most worthless to trust as your hope of Heaven, the shed blood of Jesus Christ for your sins, or a suicide pact with Marshall Applewhite and his followers?

God's Word says it is better to marry, (1 Cor. 7:9); provide for your own family, (1 Tim. 5:8); attend church regularly, (Heb. 10:25); owe no man anything, (Rom. 13:8); love your neighbor as yourself, (Mark 12:31); and to trust the shed blood of Jesus Christ as your hope of salvation, (Heb. 9:22-28). Jesus Christ is the only way to God. (John 14:6) It is better to trust God than any man, including yours truly. (Psalms 118:8)

Flower grower conducts a Texas workshop

Local African violet grower Don Geiss was recently asked to conduct a workshop on that subject in Beaumont, Texas, the home office location for the national African Violet Society. Geiss, who writes frequently for the African Violet magazine, was suggested for the program by the magazine editor.

He was introduced by the local club president as having a national reputation because of his articles appearing in the magazine.

During the course of his program, the starting of plants, growing, trimming, and repotting were discussed. He demonstrated an inexpensive artificial light plant stand that he had constructed.

People attending the workshop in Beaumont, a city of over 114,000, were members of the local office staff, the African Violet Society of Beaumont, and others representing garden clubs in the area.

In the course of preparing for the workshop, Geiss was able to meet with Hortense and Ray Pittman of San Antonio who are internationally known for hybridizing the African violets to create new colors. They are currently working to cross-breed more intense yellow violets. The first yellows to be introduced were of a pale variety. The Pittmans provided Geiss with two plants with the yellow flowers to show the participants at the Beaumont workshop. Those plants, along with some new, outstanding color varieties will also serve as parent stock of new colors available here.

Geiss has conducted similar types of workshops throughout northern Michigan at senior centers, garden clubs, and with teacher groups. He indicated that when some of the new colors come into complete flower, he will hold an open house to show off these varieties.

While in Texas, Geiss also conducted workshops for senior citizens in the Rio Grande Valley. Most of the attendees at one senior center were Hispanic and spoke little or no English. Geiss said, "It was a unique experience to pause frequently for a translator, and then to pick up the train of thought again."

Church Directory

It happened while I was hiking in the mountains...suddenly I came into a clearing and saw the crumbling foundations of what had once meant shelter and protection for a pioneer family. Rugged mountains surrounded the decayed dwelling on three sides. But in front, opened a panorama across a valley which in all its beauty held me spellbound.

I turned and noticed a small, old-fashioned rose bush which seemed to reminisce with yesteryear beside the old house. I could feel the presence of those long-ago people. How they must have loved this place. The woman had tended flowers and vegetables here, had borne her babies and had helped her man carve a life from the wilderness.

What was their secret...these pioneer people? Where did they find the courage and confidence needed to face the deprivations and dangers of primitive living? God was their refuge and strength. Their love of Him illumined their lives, and goodness graced their days. God, in his greatness, is the source of all bounty and joy. They are yours for the asking.

Volunteers needed for Wellington

Wellington Farm Park, Michigan's newest open-air museum, will open for the season on May 24. The park is located on South Military Road between Grayling and Higgins Lake.

The 60-acre complex is a working replica of a typical mid-American farmstead of 1932, a period of time known as the Great Depression. Times were difficult, there was very little work, less money and the farmer was especially hard-hit by this economic condition.

Several volunteers are needed to assist in the operation of Wellington Farm Park. Classes are now being formed which will assist volunteers in role playing activities which will enable them to accurately portray the 1932 time period. Volunteers are asked to be able to commit at least one-half day per week throughout the season. Wellington Farm Park is a nonprofit corporation.

Volunteers can expect to be assigned a variety of typical farm chores, from caring for animals, working in the fields, performing repairs to buildings and machinery, working in the carpenter shop or the blacksmith shop, milling grain or assisting in the sawmill. Some volunteers will also be assigned to the Visitor Center/Gift Shop.

Anyone who is interested in volunteering a few hours a month to Wellington Farm Park should call the park at 348-5187 for more information. The first volunteer class will be held on April 22. Wellington Farm Park is especially interested in volunteers who lived during the Depression, and will be able to visit with park visitors about that period of time. Families are also invited to volunteer as a unit. Wellington Farm Park will be open daily throughout the tourist season and anticipates that it will welcome over 2,000 visitors per month.

Failed policies have allowed state roads to decay

Despite the doubling of federal highway dollars coming into Michigan over the past five years, the failed policies of the Engler administration have allowed Michigan's roads and bridges to fall into disrepair, U.S. Rep. Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) said.

Those failed policies, Stupak said, include an abysmal lack of state commitment to highway maintenance, a diversion of tens of millions of highway dollars to other departments of state government, and excessive spending on Michigan Department of Transportation administrative overhead.

"The amount of federal highway money that Michigan received more than doubled from $346 million in 1990 to $732 million in 1995," Stupak said. "In fact, the state has reached the point where it now receives virtually dollar for dollar what it contributes to the Highway Trust Fund."

"Despite all these increases in federal money, Michigan drivers dodge potholes on poorly-maintained roads on a daily basis. Clearly, it's not federal funding but the failed policies of the Engler administration that prevents maintenance of our roads and pothole repair."

Stupak said this year's highway budget once again demonstrates what is wrong with the governor's policies. "Michigan gives $108 million in highway dollars to eight other departments of state government. The Secretary of State alone takes $86 million to run her office."

"Adding insult to injury, MDOT will spend more money in administrative costs than in actual roadway maintenance. The administrative costs in MDOT amount to $1.621 per mile versus $1.312 per mile in maintenance costs. That's not right," Stupak said.

"Is it any wonder why Michigan does not have enough money to maintain its roads?" Stupak asked. "When you have a Governor who siphons off our road money to operate state government and to pay for administrative costs rather than road repairs costs, you begin to understand why Michigan is rated 45th out of 50 states in its effort to maintain our roads."

Stupak called attention to the fact that three GOP state senators have recently proposed the state look within its own budget to fix Michigan roads, an action that reveals others are now beginning to understand the severity of the problem.

"The state senators' proposal to stop the transfer of $40 million to the Secretary of State, add $70 million in supplemental appropriations, transfer money from the state's rainy day fund," and cut MDOT overhead would be a step in the right direction to begin to address the serious deterioration of Michigan's roads," Stupak said.

"As a member of the Congressional delegation, I will continue to make sure Michigan receives its fair share of federal highway money," he said. "However, my efforts are being undermined by the governor's use of highway monies to run state government, excessive spending on administrative costs, and a failure to use state resources to maintain and repair our roads."

Along with: Houghton Lake School System, Mid-State Exposition, Dynamite the Clown, The Party Line, Houghton Lake Choir, The Donut Hole, Dan Fishell, the Media and the many, many workers who worked so hard to present this show.

In addition to bringing out the crochuses, the warmer temperatures tend to bring out many of the scam artists who prey on unsuspecting and trusting homeowners. Law enforcement and consumer advocates are warning homeowners to be on the look out for unsolicited visits by contractors. Particularly those who say they just happened to be driving by and noticed that your roof, driveway, windows, or whatever, needed work.

Consumers are cautioned to avoid entering into agreements with contractors who contact them in this manner. There are many cases of trusting individuals who have given sizeable down payments for repair work to be done by the nice young man who came to the door, never to hear from him, or see their money, again.

In cases where work has been done, it may not have been done completely, or correctly. Usually, attempts made to contact the person responsible prove fruitless. More than likely they have moved on to find another neighborhood ripe for the picking.

The Michigan Department of Consumer and Industry Services (CIS) recommends that consumers do the following before agreeing to have work done on their homes: 1) always deal with a licensed contractor and ask for proof of licensing status; 2) get references of those you are considering to do the work; 3) get written estimates and be wary of "special low prices"; 4) get a written contract and have an attorney review it, especially if a large amount of money is involved; 5) never pay for the entire job in advance; and 6) never pay in cash. CIS also says to remember that you have a right to cancel within three days of signing any contract solicited and signed in your home. You can do so by sending the contractor a registered letter stating your desire to cancel.

If you have problems with a contractor: 1) try to resolve the matter before making final payment; 2) contact the local building inspector on questions of workmanship and code violations; 3) consider going to small claims court on matters involving less than $1,500; 4) file a complaint with the Department of Consumer and Industry Services, Commercial Enforcement Division, P.O. Box 30018, Lansing, MI 48909, (517) 373-9153; and 5) if fraud is suspected, file a criminal complaint with the local police or sheriff's department or contact the Office of the Attorney General. In some instances you may have to seek the assistance of an attorney to resolve the matter. Seniors 60 years and older can contact the local Area Agency on Aging for the telephone number of the legal services program providing free legal services to the elderly in their area of the state.

One other note of caution, if you are visiting your local homebuilders show and are tempted to enter one of the many prize drawings offered, you should realize that by entering, your name will more than likely be put on a mailing or call list. These lists are used by the company offering the prize to generate leads for potential customers. Mailing and call lists get sold to other companies generating more mail and calls to your home. So, if you are already annoyed by unwanted mail and phone solicitations, look out because by entering prize drawings you could be opening the flood gates for more to come.

If you have any questions concerning this Issue Alert, or would like copies of past Issue Alerts, please call Mark Manrique, Michigan Office of Services to the Aging at (517) 373-4076.

Callewaert receives scholarship

Kaethe E. Callewaert, a Northwood junior from Grayling, was granted the Oscar W. Kloha Scholarship(s) for the 1996-97 academic year.

Kaethe is the daughter of Jean and Joseph Callewaert of Grayling.

Private Donor Scholarships at Northwood are awarded by the scholarship committee of the college to those students who meet the requirements specified by individual scholarship donors. These scholarships represent support from organizations, foundations, and individuals who show concern and interest for student achievements and are committed to the future of Northwood University.

Private donor scholars, who represent Northwood University and the scholarship donor, participate in community and campus projects. This year more than $500,000 was donated to 320 qualified Northwood students.

Environment and natural resources win increases in new budgets passed by senate

The Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will both receive increased funding according to budget bills passed in the state Senate, announced Senator George McManus (R-Traverse City).

"Folks in northern Michigan understand that clean air and water are vital to us," said McManus, commenting on the DEQ budget. "Although a clean, pollution-free environment is important to our tourism industry, it is absolutely critical for the health and welfare of future generations."

McManus, who chairs the Senate Appropriations subcommittees and sponsored the DEQ and DNR budget bills, noted several important provisions of the DEQ budget for 1997-98:

- Increased funding for Community Right-to-Know reports. These reports inform a community of what contaminants are present in the area, allowing greater local involvement in the process of preventing pollution.

- Increased funding for Surface Water Quality Monitoring. Provides block grants to local governments for monitoring the quality of surface water in a community.

- Increased funding for Scrap Tire Fire Suppression. Allows for reimbursement to local firefighting departments for costs incurred in fighting scrap tire fires, such as the 1995-96 fire in Blair Township.

- Increased funding for the Environmental Cleanup and Redevelopment Fund. Money from this fund is used to redevelop previously contaminated commercial/industrial sites.

- Establishment of a new statewide Drinking Water Revolving Fund. Creating this new fund allows the state to receive federal matching money to ensure safe drinking water throughout Michigan.

"In addition to making strides in the area of pollution prevention, I am also pleased to announce increased funding for the Department of Natural Resources," McManus said. "Marine safety grants will earmark money for local sheriff departments to maintain a higher level of safety for those who use public waterways. Forest management initiatives will provide critical road care and facility maintenance in many of our beautiful woodlands."

"We even included a provision which requires various state agencies to work out a plan for disposing of animals killed by vehicles on Michigan roads," McManus said. "Overall, these measures will help to preserve the natural beauty of northern Michigan, and ensure the safe enjoyment of the God-given resources which surround us."

The DEQ and DNR budget bills now proceed to the state House of Representatives for consideration.

Wildfire safety tips

Always use the ashtray when smoking in your vehicle. A match tossed from a car window, farm vehicle, or off-road vehicle (ORV) can ignite leaves or grass, causing a wildfire. Never grind a cigarette, cigar or pipe tobacco out on a stump or log.

Engagement. Spring arrives at Kidz Korner announced

Sharon Denise Stuart of Jacksonville, Texas and David Richard Atkinson of Irving, Texas, have announced their engagement.

The couple plans a May 24 wedding at the First Baptist Church of Jacksonville.

David is the son of Minnie and Marshall Atkinson of Irving. He is a senior at Dallas Baptist University.

The Atkinson family are former residents of Grayling.

Booster Rooster has shed his warm woolen coat. Birds are fluttering in the sky. Crops are emerging from thawing soil. Spring has arrived at Kidz Korner.

A site aimed at teaching children about agriculture and food safety, Kidz Korner is located in the Michigan Department of Agriculture's website at <http://www.mda.state.mi.us>.

This spring's offerings include:

- A look at two of Michigan's most important spring crops: asparagus and lilies;
- Tips on how to care for springtime's cutest creatures—chicks, bunnies and ducklings;

- How children can help their parents clean out kitchen cupboards and refrigerators to make sure family meals are safe and wholesome;

- A story about how maple sap is tapped and made into maple syrup. The story teller is a young Michigan boy who lives on a maple syrup farm near Lansing;

- "An Unhappy Queen"—the story of Lacey, a standard poodle who had to wear a special collar around her neck and didn't like it one bit; and

- The Information booth, a section jammed-packed with agriculture-related events all over Michigan throughout 1997-98.

Kidz Korner also contains fun games to play and special areas where children are invited to send in their own stories.

Since its debut in late December 1996, Kidz Korner has generated over 40,000 "hits" or visits by web surfers. New information is added each season, and old information is archived so children can easily find it.

HEALTHLINE

Linda DeMarchis, M.A., Health Educator

Question: Last year my child came home from school with head lice. Could you give me some information about this problem?

Answer: Now that school has begun, we would like to call your attention to an annual problem—head lice. To insure that your young students will bring only school supplies to the classroom and not these tiny little hitchhikers, we suggest you conduct a head lice inspection.

These small wingless parasites live on the scalp and hair and move from one person to another through exchange of personal belongings, such as combs, hats, etc., and close personal contact. Head lice have a "picnic" traveling from child to child at camps, athletic events, slumber parties and other activities which put children's heads close together. In addition, jackets and hats, which may hang side by side, also give these insects a perfect opportunity to spread.

When inspecting for head lice, look for the grayish white eggs of the female louse, called a nit, firmly glued to the base of the hair shaft. Pay particular attention to the back of the head and behind the ears. Use a magnifying glass and flashlight if necessary. Also notice if your children have been scratching their heads frequently, since head lice may cause intense itching. The adult lice, if few in number, may be difficult to see and combing the child's hair over a white towel or white paper may reveal the small brown-colored insects.

If you notice head lice, don't be embarrassed. These creatures can affect anyone and rarely distinguish between clean and unwashed hair. They are not a sign of poor grooming habits and may even find washed hair easier to grasp onto than oily, unwashed hair. If one family member has head lice, inspect the whole family, because lice may migrate from one family member to another.

To prevent and eliminate head lice, try these helpful tips:

- Instruct children to put hats and scarves inside jacket sleeves and keep a space between their coats and another children's outerwear.
- Advise them not to share articles of clothing, combs, brushes, earphones and athletic helmets, pillows, etc.
- Inspect heads periodically. If head lice are discovered, several good shampoos are available either with or without a doctor's prescription. After shampooing, comb out any visible nits with a special comb. A solution of 1/2 vinegar, 1/2 water may help loosen nits when allowed to remain in the hair for several minutes.

- Remove child's bedding and wash in hot water or seal in a plastic garbage bag for several weeks until lice and nits are dead.
- A spray is available to use on carpeting, beds, chairs, etc. as a final precaution and can be obtained at your local pharmacy.

If you have any questions about head lice, call District Health Department No. 1 or stop by any health department office and pick up an information pamphlet on the subject.

BITS OF TALK

by Fay Bovee — 348-7017

We're reprinting Tom Roby's address so that cards can be sent to him: Tom Roby, 7956 Starville Road, Cottrellville, MI 48039.

John and Sharon Huss, their daughter Julie Koli, and her son, Jordan, were in Suffolk, Virginia, recently where they attended the services for John's stepfather, Joseph Prentis Webb. Webb died in Central Lake on Nov. 22, and the services took place in Virginia on April 4. The Huss and Webb families were special guests of the Williamsburg Foundation, as the Prentis/Webb family had contributed to early history of Williamsburg, where much of the family library and furnishings were donated to the foundation. The families were given passes to Williamsburg which they toured including the 18th century Prentis store. Services at the cemetery were New Orleans Jazz style as Webb sang with a jazz band and was known as "Dr. Jazz." His best friend, Bud Becholdt, a clarinetist, made a tape which was played there.

Charlie Kucharek completed basic training at Lackland AF Base in San Antonio, Texas, and his mother, Mrs. Wendy Kucharek and brother Chris, attended his graduation in March. He has now been at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, for three weeks. Chris is the grandson of Mrs. Marlene Lippard and the great grandson of Mrs. Doris Sorenson.

Mrs. Martelle Lietz spent Easter weekend with her daughter, Maureen Hicks, and grandchildren, Andrea and George, in Stanton. They were joined by another daughter, Kirsten Lietz from Lansing. During the weekend they went to Grand Rapids to visit the Michigan Botanical Gardens filled with many tropical plants, the beautiful butterfly house, and the Brandeis sculpture which is everywhere. Martelle said it was a wonderful trip and she thoroughly enjoyed it. On their return home, they saw an unusual sight, a snowy owl sitting by the road and they were able to stop and watch for awhile.

Joyce and Vern Fox spent a week in Hudson, Florida, with her parents. While they were there they hosted a birthday party for her mother, Gildreth, who was 89 and father, Hersey Saunders, who was 90.

Pete and Gloria Stephan and their grandson, Aaron Stephan, spent twelve days in Sparta, Tenn., where they visited their daughter and family, Diane and Mark Adkison, Matt and Heather. They helped Matt celebrate his birthday while they were there.

Bill and Gloria Kraus have arrived back in Grayling after spending the winter in Gulf Shores, Ala. They report that it was a very good winter this year.

Congratulations to R. J. Hannan who has won a Recognition Award for his Cultural Series and Learning Programs. It came from the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Several members of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling and other citizens spent Saturday afternoon at Hanson Hills washing walls and floors at the old Bear Archery Museum building that is being used for many youth activities including the Youth Center. The community service work day was arranged by Cindy Olsen, director at Hanson Hills.

Congratulations go to two long-time Grayling citizens — Emil Kraus, who celebrated his 80th birthday, and to Sal Hubel who celebrated his 94th birthday. If you want to know something about all of the volunteering for Grayling activities that put Grayling on the map, ask Sal. She was active in so many that I would never be able to tell you all of them.

DOODLES FROM THE TALL TIMBER

by Wendell L. Hoover, Park Interpreter, North Higgins Lake State Park

The pile of droppings at the base of the hollow beech tree was unmistakable evidence of a porcupine. Porcupines do not hibernate during the winter months, but stay active, feeding upon their favored foods. If left alone the "porcus spina" (quill pig) will usually spend part of each day sleeping in its den and the remainder of the day feeding on the bark of pine, hemlock, beech, maple or aspen. During the summer clover, alfalfa, dandelions, corn or lily pads may be included in its diet.

The porcupine has a keen sense of smell and hearing that is equal to that of humans. Their real short coming is with vision that renders them nearly blind to stationary objects and only a little better for moving objects. What they lack in hearing and vision is offset by a formidable defense system composed of 30,000 or so quills with needle-sharp points. The quills have barbs shaped like fishhooks, reducing their extraction to a matter of literally tearing the quills out. If not removed quickly, muscular contraction will cause the quills to work deeper and deeper into the victim. Cutting the tip off the quill before trying to pull it helps, but you still need a good pair of pliers to get an effective grip.

When old porky is relaxed those quills lie sleekly along the body, but when danger threatens the quills rise for battle. The quills may be up to five inches long and each is under muscular control. Most of those 30,000 quills are concentrated on the back and tail so when porky is threatened it whips around, presenting its heavily quilled back and tail to the attacker. If the attacker gets too close, it will be swatted with a powerful quill-laden tail. For a wild animal with a face and mouth full of quills death is inevitable.

For an animal weighing up to 15 pounds and measuring 30 inches long, with the definite appearance of being clumsy, the porcupine is a skilled climber. Once up a tree it can climb across branches a half inch in diameter. It uses four incisor teeth (two above, two below) and molars to strip the outer bark off tree branches. Twenty-five feet of intestines aid in digesting all that roughage.

Normally porcupines are solitary animals except during mating season in the fall. When male and female meet they sit on their haunches, squealing and clattering their teeth and touching forepaws. Despite thoughts to the contrary, porcupines mate in the same position as other four-footed critters. In April or May a single kit is born (rarely two) weighing in at a pound. Within an hour its quills have dried and are ready for defense.

Only three predators are reported to be successful in their attacks upon porcupines. The fisher is said to burrow under the snow in winter to get at the unprotected belly. Weasels strike at the throat where quills are few, and wolves are said to shake a porky by its nose until it is dead. In most one-on-one encounters the porky usually comes out on the winning side.

Ideal fish consumption listed in advisory

by Kristyn Sobler
Capital News Service

Mike Briskey has witnessed the improvement of water quality in Lake Erie since the late 1980s.

Briskey, an avid fisherman and general manager of Luna Pier Harbour Club, doesn't see much harm in eating the fish. "It's fabulous eating," he said, if they're cleaned right. Not all environmentalists would agree.

With increasing publicity from the new $5 million "Great Lakes, Great Times" Michigan tourism campaign, fish consumption is becoming a major issue.

The Department of Community Health recently issued a fish consumption advisory for women who are pregnant, nursing, planning to have children and children under 15.

The advisory lists which fish should be eaten once a week or once a month for those individuals. It also details the size of the contaminated fish and their locations.

Individuals in those groups should limit their consumption of large muskellunge, pike, bass or walleye, or more generally, large and older fish, said Scott Walker, director of health promotion and publicity for the department.

"The larger and older fish have a greater potential for contamination," he said. These fish have more fat, where contaminants tend to be stored. The fish contain small amounts of toxic chemicals, such as mercury and PCBs, which may be harmful in large quantities.

The advisory gives instructions on how to properly clean and cook fish. The notice was included in a fishing guide, which is distributed annually to those who purchase fishing licenses.

Dave Dempsey, policy director of the Michigan Environmental Council, isn't convinced that government officials are doing enough to reduce the pollution in the Great Lakes.

Mothers who eat large quantities of these fish may be endangering their children. "Children can have lower IQs, attention span problems and behavioral problems," Dempsey said. The evidence isn't conclusive, although several studies show these effects, including one by psychologists at Wayne State University, he said.

Contamination in fish decreased 70 to 80 percent by 1970, said Dempsey, but since 1985, the rate has showed no decline. He said he hasn't seen a commitment from the governor or legislators to do enough improvements for the Great Lakes.

"I'm glad the governor and legislators are taking pride in the Great Lakes, but I wish they would take greater pride in stronger environmental standards," Dempsey said.

Generally, swimming is safe, said Dempsey. Although he warns that swimming in certain parts of the Great Lakes after a storm or at the mouth of a river by a major city may be harmful. "After a major rain, cities are overwhelmed and waste goes into the rivers to the Great Lakes. This occurs around urban areas like Lake St. Clair and Saginaw Bay," he said.

"The Great Lakes are pretty clean, except for some local water quality problems in the Saginaw Bay and Lake St. Clair," said Richard Moore, senior resource policy specialist for the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

According to Moore, there are no risks of swimming or boating in the Great Lakes.

He called the fish consumption advisory a "best guess" for what a safe level of fish consumption is.

Several factors need to be considered, such as where the fish was caught, what type of fish and its size. According to Moore, the quantity of PCB is so low that you cannot even measure the amount.

The problem is that people don't understand the issue, since they are hearing mixed allegations, said Moore. "State agencies and media need to do a better job of communicating the health advisories of eating Great Lakes fish."

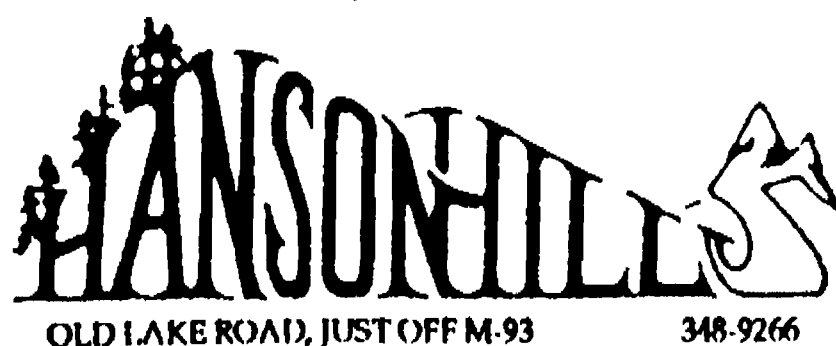

According to Briskey: "The most important thing when catching fish is that you must clean it right." Done correctly, the majority of the fat, where toxic chemicals are stored, can be eliminated.

Briskey chooses not to eat larger fish because they have more fat and don't taste as good.

The Luna Pier Harbour Club even has its own cleaning building. Most fishermen understand the correct way to clean a fish, Briskey said.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) — A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, jointaches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is available immediately without a prescription in an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream or new easy applicator liquid form. Arthur Itis, is guaranteed to work or your money back.

The carnival, to be held in the school's gymnasium, will have 14 different games for participants to play.

State fire marshal sends wildfire message

"This is the most dangerous time of year when it comes to wildfires." This is the message being sent from Captain Wade Schaefer of the Michigan State Police Fire Marshal Division. "This is the time of year when dead leaves and grass can easily ignite and burn hundreds of acres. People need to be aware of the danger and exercise extra caution during this time of year."

Over one-third of Michigan wildfires are caused by people burning debris. For this reason, burning permits under the state Forest Fire Law will not be issued during the two week period from May 3 to 18. Schaefer is reminding everyone to refrain from outdoor burning of yard and household debris during this period. Instead of burning yard debris, recycle it. Yard wastes can be recycled by either mulching or composting them.

Homes in rural settings can be particularly vulnerable to wildfire during the spring. Firewise landscaping can help. Maintain a ring of safety around your home to protect it from wildfires. Keep grass mowed within 30 feet of all buildings, thin out trees so that their crowns don't touch, and trim the bottom branches of all evergreen trees to six feet above the ground. When dumping ashes from the fireplace or woodstove, wet them thoroughly with water to be sure all coals are completely out.

"Intentionally setting a wildfire is arson, and is a felony punishable by a $10,000 fine and/or 10 years in jail," added Schaefer. "About 15 percent of the wildfires are set deliberately. We are encouraging people to report arsons if they are a witness."

Michigan's toll-free arson hotline is 1-800-44ARSON. The caller will remain confidential and reward money may be given if the information provided leads to an arrest.

Last year, Michigan fire agencies responded to more than 5,000 wildfires that burned over 7,300 acres. The estimated cost to suppress the fires was $3,000,000. It is important to remember that most of the wildfires caused each year are a result of burning debris such as grass, leaves, brush and trash. Never burn debris on a windy day, especially in the spring. Remember to refrain from debris burning during the time period of May 3 to 18.

Minimum wage increase could affect unemployment

The forthcoming increase in Michigan's minimum wage will mean extra cash in the pockets of some workers, but it also means that qualifying for unemployment benefits in the state could become a little tougher.

Thomas Malek, acting director of the Michigan Employment Security Agency (MESA), noted that the requirements to qualify for unemployment benefits are tied to the state's minimum wage rate.

"With the new state minimum wage of $4.75 an hour, effective May 1, an individual will need earnings of at least $142.50 per week in order to qualify for jobless benefits," Malek said. "And when the minimum wage goes to $5.15 an hour on Sept. 1, the qualifying earnings jump to $154.50 per week."

Currently, the weekly earnings requirement is $100.50, based on the existing state minimum wage of $3.35 an hour.

MESA does not expect that higher earnings requirements will prevent many workers from qualifying to receive jobless benefits.

"Initially, the change could hurt, perhaps, two to three percent of those who file claims for benefits," Malek said. "These would be largely low-paid, part-time workers. Overall, however, wage levels in the state are such that most workers would still have the protection of jobless benefits should they become unemployed."

According to Michigan's unemployment insurance law, most individuals qualify by earning wages of at least 30 times the state's minimum hourly wage in each of 20 weeks. In addition, the 20 weeks must fall within the 52-week period preceding the individual's application for benefits.

Ritter, Cadeau help team advance to nationals

by Craig Hoffman
Sports Writer

The AuSable Valley Girls Basketball Association, a chapter involved in the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), took third place at the AAU state competition in the 14 and under division in Grand Rapids.

The team is made up of a variety of girls from Alcona to St. Ignace.

Grayling has two participants on the team - Brandy Ritter, daughter of Tom and Sue Ritter, and Carrie Cadeau - daughter of Charles and Sharon Cadeau.

Both girls are eighth graders at Grayling Middle School.

The team's head coach is Tom Ritter. He is assisted by Mike Welch of Petoskey.

"This is, as far as we know, the first northern Michigan AAU team to go to nationals. It is especially nice for all of the girls because all but two have played together for three years. The girls have come close to qualifying before by finishing fourth and seventh in the last two state competitions," said Ritter.

AAU is a pay-to-play organization. The team is open and must be posted or advertised. The girls who show up are the girls who get to play.

Ritter said 22 girls showed up so they split into two teams of 11.

The AuSable Valley team played teams from all different size cities because there is no population division.

The top four teams qualified for nationals because the more teams a state has the more that get to go to nationals. Michigan had 48 teams at the state competition so they were allowed to have four teams qualify for nationals.

According to Ritter, there will be approximately 150 teams at nationals.

Three girls on the AuSable Valley team were named all state, Brandy Ritter, Grayling; Sarah Norton, Charlevoix; and Randi Johnson, St. Ignace.

The team will travel to Amarillo, Texas during the week of July 18-26 to participate in nationals.

"We are going to have a car drive and a Glen's slip drive to try and help pay for the cost, but with all of the girls living in different areas it would be hard to do a big fund-raiser so each girl will try to raise some money," Ritter said.

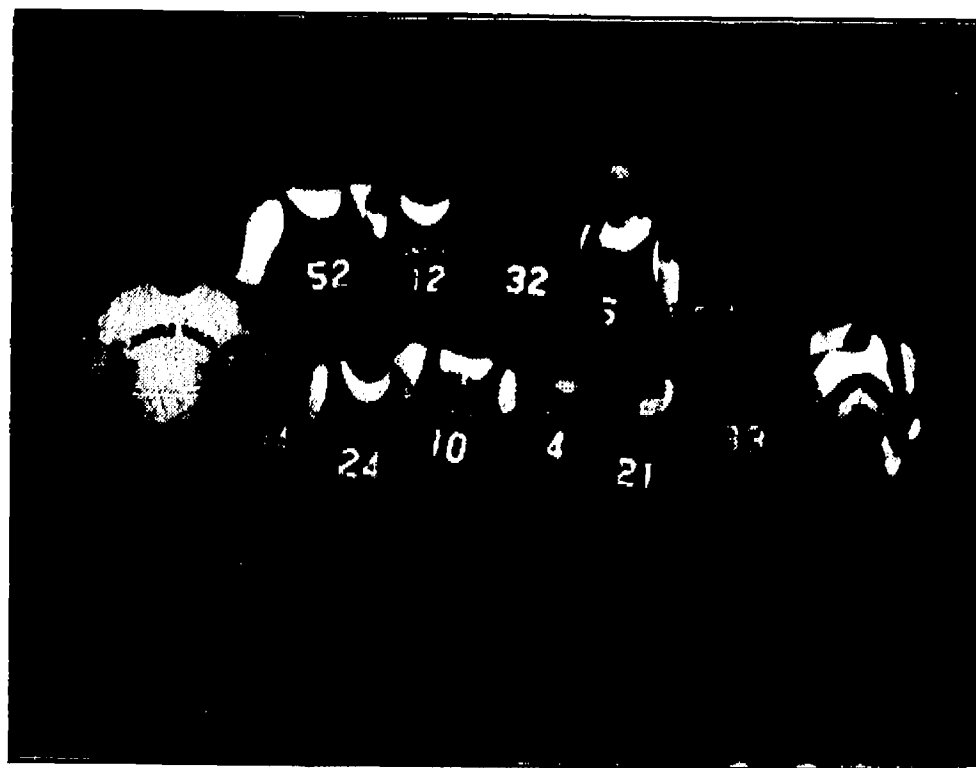

"We will go no matter what. This is an exciting time for the girls and parents and is something that can not be missed," Sue Ritter said.

"People who have experience at nationals told us it is like the Olympics. People have T-shirts made, flags and the girls will exchange gifts with others all around the nation," Sue Ritter said.

To donate cans or Glen's green slips contact Tom Ritter at 348-2694. There will be an official drive, but a date is not set.

GRAYLING DUO -- Carrie Cadeau (left) and Brandy Ritter are the two Grayling girls that will be traveling to Amarillo, Texas to compete in the AAU nationals basketball competition.

Amman to travel to Great Britain for dance/theatre trip

Sarah Amman, Grayling, will be one of 15 Alma College students traveling to Great Britain to experience dance and theatre at a very high level during spring term 1997.

Designed by associate professor of dance, Carol Fike, the dance/theatre trip includes experiencing productions of "Hamlet" at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre and the Royal Ballet at the Royal Opera House.

Students will tour backstage at the National Theatre and take a walking tour of several other theatres. In addition, the group will travel to Stratford Upon Avon and visit Shakespeare's country as well as Windsor Castle, Tower of London, St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and the Globe Museum.

More than 275 Alma College students are taking advantage of the many options available during spring term for travel and study overseas and in the United States.

The month-long term provides a time when students can study a single subject intensely.

Faculty members design innovative courses which often include special projects or travel; the point is to attempt an in-depth experience, one that is not as easy to undertake during a regular semester. Students are expected to complete two spring terms as a part of the undergraduate curriculum.

Food commodities to be passed out

Surplus food commodities will be distributed by Carl W. Borchers Auxiliary 3736 and Post on April 22 at the Eagles Hall from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

In order to receive surplus food commodities, any resident of Crawford County that is at or below the poverty level must register or be certified. If you are not certified, you may do so on April 22. If you receive food stamps, AFDC, SSI, Medicaid or GA, you are eligible for this program. Anyone who feels that they should be in this program should bring proof of the gross income for every working person in the household and personal identification for the head of the household. Drivers license is preferable. If your income is a direct deposit, bring in your bank statement. If you have no income you must bring in a statement from Social Services to that effect or bring your eligibility card from any of the above mentioned programs.

Gross income refers to total cash receipts before taxes. Eligibility is based on (1) wages and salaries before any deductions; (2) receipts from non-farm and farm self-employment; (3) regular payments from social security, railroad retirement, unemployment compensation, strike benefits, veterans' benefits, public assistance including supplemental security income (SSI), training stipends, alimony, private pensions, government employee pensions, and regular insurance or annuity payments and (4) income from dividends, interest, rent, royalties, or periodic receipts from estates or trusts. Exempt incomes are capital gains, tax refunds, student loans, medicare premium deducted from social security and child support.

A household is a single individual or group of related or non-related individuals, an immediate family or extended family who are living as one economic unit and for whom food is customarily purchased and prepared in common.

Food products and funding are made available to the states on the basis of the number of persons unemployed and those below the poverty level.

Persons should not call the Eagles Hall for information on this program.

Process of convening zoning board brought to council's attention

by Eric Gaertner
News Editor

Derek McEvers, a Grayling resident, attended the Jan. 27 Grayling City Council meeting to discuss a zoning issue, and he was back at the Monday, April 14, meeting to attempt to get the matter to the zoning board of appeals.

McEvers has problems with Zoning Administrator Jerry Morford's decision to approve the site plan for a church expansion. McEvers' home is located adjacent to the Michelson Memorial United Methodist Church.

Monte Burmeister, McEvers' attorney, told the city council members at Monday's meeting that McEvers ran into problems in attempting to get his matter heard by the zoning board of appeals. McEvers wants to appeal the approval of Morford which stated the church's expansion project was in compliance with the zoning ordinance.

McEvers disagrees with Morford, stating that the expansion is not in compliance with the city's ordinance. According to Burmeister, his client has received conflicting reasons for convening the zoning board of appeals. Burmeister said that in a memorandum from Morford, who also is Grayling City Manager, it states that any taxpayer who disagrees with the zoning administrator's decision can have case heard by zoning board.

Then, on the other hand, City Attorney David Sabin states that a person has to be aggrieved before that party can bring an item to the zoning board of appeals, said Burmeister. According to Sabin, an aggrieved party is one who has suffered special damages not common to other property owners.

Morford said that his memorandum was based on his past experiences with zoning issues that have been appealed. He deferred to the city attorney in this matter, mentioning his memorandum that the past zoning appeals he had handled were of a different nature than this one.

Since Burmeister and McEvers were having trouble getting the zoning board convened, Burmeister asked the city council members to request that the matter be heard.

Burmeister played a tape of the Jan. 27 meeting, which had Mayor Robert Golnick asking McEvers if he wanted the city council to request that the zoning board of appeals handle the situation. On the tape, McEvers said the city did not have to, because he would file the appeal on his own.

Burmeister said at the April 14 meeting that if that offer still stands, then McEvers would accept council's involvement in getting the zoning board convened. Golnick said he would listen to what the city attorney had to say in this matter.

"My opinion is that the zoning board of appeals not convene," Sabin said. "If they (McEvers and Burmeister) come up with significant enough evidence to show that Mr. McEvers has been aggrieved, then they deserve the zoning board hearing."

After discussing the next possible step with council and Sabin, Burmeister said they would send their information directly to the zoning board of appeals and let them decide if the case should be heard.

Frederic receives NCA accreditation

The North Central Association of Colleges and Schools recently announced that Frederic Elementary School received full accreditation. The school was admitted to membership on April 9, during NCA's annual meeting in Chicago.

The NCA state director, Dr. William J. Bushaw of Ann Arbor, extended his congratulations to the schools adding that "Frederic Elementary School has now joined the growing league of schools whose purpose is the continuing quest for higher levels of quality education."

Standards form the foundation of the North Central Association's accreditation. Through their membership in NCA, schools voluntarily ascribe to meeting standards established by the organization. Accreditation is renewed each year. In addition, Frederic Elementary School must engage in a demanding continuous improvement process that directly affects the quality of education for every student.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the nation's largest regional accrediting association, is a voluntary coalition of over 7,000 schools and over 1,000 colleges and universities in the 19-state regions of the central United States. NCA works with schools to improve the quality of education through a continuous process of accreditation and evaluation.

The NCA now accredits 1,089 schools in Michigan.

Rebuilding roads not an option with lack of funds

by Eric Gaertner
News Editor

The condition of Michigan's road system has been a matter of debate at the state governmental level for a long time. Roads all over the state are in poor condition, and the roads in Crawford County are no exception.

Jim Briney, managing director of The Road Commission For Crawford County, tries to make an annual visit to at least one board meeting of each township in Crawford County.

Briney was at the South Branch Township meeting on April 8 to discuss the condition of the roads within the county and to update the township concerning road commission activities.

The roads are in poor condition across the state, including the roads in Crawford County, Briney said. To put his statement in perspective, he pointed out that 44 percent of the road system in Michigan needs to be rebuilt.

The road commission official told the South Branch residents at the board meeting that a lack of funding does not give the road commissions the opportunity to rebuild these roads.

The state and counties have focuses on maintaining the current roads, because of the lack of funding, Briney said.

When roads are rebuilt, they are scheduled to last for 20 years. Briney pointed out that a lot of roads are past that point, but the money is not available to rebuild the roads as needed. Two of the reasons Briney gave for the money not being available to rebuild the roads are the lack of a gas tax increase, and the governor taking a portion of federal funding away from the local agencies and using it for state projects.

"With the funding the way it is, the only thing we can do is work to maintain the current road system," Briney said. "We are working to hold things together until the funding is there from the state to rebuild the roads."

The spring season causes even more problems for the poor roads. The spring "break up" leads to a lot of potholes, especially in northern Michigan.

One resident asked the road commission representative if the funding is available to fill the potholes.

The potholes will be filled, Briney said. The Road Commission For Crawford County will be doing a better job than ever, because of better training, better equipment and better material.

One way some roads get rebuilt is through state and federal grants. Crawford County has received some of these grants in the past to help certain roads, but grant money may not be available for quite awhile.

The Road Commission For Crawford County will not lose any project when state and federal grants are available, because this road commission has the funds for the match, Briney said.

But Briney said he believes funds for grants won't be made available by the state and federal level for three to four years.

Fishing license prices big change for seniors

by Kameela Tresh

Capital News Service

Anglers won't be angling if they don't purchase the new 1997 Michigan fishing licenses.

As of April 1, anglers between 17- and 64-years old now will have to purchase a $13 restricted license, valid for all fish except trout and salmon, or a $26 all-species license.

This is changed from the previous $10.35 charge for a restricted license and $10.35 trout stamp, said Ed Hagan, Michigan Department of Natural Resources special project coordinator in Lansing.

Trout stamps will no longer be used. This change is to eventually meld the two licenses to one, Hagan said.

The price increase goes with inflation, Hagan said. "Nothing had changed since 1986."

But seniors 65 and older receive a 60 percent discount. They will now pay $5.20 for restricted licenses and $10.40 for all-species licenses.

The free senior spouse fishing license is no longer available.

Seniors who don't want a full-year license can purchase a 24-hour pass for $3.

"This is a big change for seniors,"

Hagan said. "There are concerns by seniors that it increased too much."

This new charge is significantly more than the previous $1.50 charge.

For more information regarding fishing in Michigan, call the Fishing Hotline at 1-800-ASK-FISH or access the DNR website at www.dnr.state.mi.us and click on "Fisheries Division."

MESA hotline fights fraud

The Michigan Employment Security Agency (MESA) is like a big insurance company when it comes to issuing checks to help unemployed workers endure tough times. Just like insurance companies, however, MESA is not immune to fraud.

That's why the agency operates a toll-free fraud hotline, 1-800-822-1122.

Business persons or individuals are urged to call that number to report suspected fraud, such as an employee or ex-employee improperly collecting unemployment benefits or a business paying cash to employees to avoid paying taxes on them to MESA.

"Most of the caseload in the agency's fraud investigations section comes from hotline tips," said Tom Malek, MESA's acting director. "The section gets 50 hotline calls a month on average, so it's a valuable tool for ensuring a lot of money goes to the right place — to the benefit of Michigan taxpayers and working folks who may need it down the road."

In fiscal 1996, the agency investigated cases of fraud totaling $6 million, including penalties and interest, and the tally is $2.6 million so far this fiscal year, Malek said.

"It's important to note that most people do not misuse the system. The $6-million figure represents only a small portion of the dollars MESA paid out in benefits in 1996," Malek said.

Last year, nearly 411,000 claimants collected more than $1 billion in unemployment benefits, Malek said. Persons accused of unemployment compensation fraud face charges ranging from a misdemeanor with no jail time to a felony punishable by five years in prison. Those convicted of receiving benefits through fraud must pay full restitution plus up to triple that amount in penalties.

Tipsters may call the fraud hotline anytime. Callers' names are not divulged.

New sports team plays season opener

The Grayling High School athletic department added a new sport, and that first-year squad has begun its season.

Just like the boys' soccer team began their first season of play in the fall sports season, the girls' soccer team is now in action during the spring sports season.

While most of the spring sports teams in Grayling have been unable to have any of their games because of the weather, the girls' soccer team has got two games already in the books. The Grayling girls were able to escape the "winter" conditions by playing in two contests downstate.

The Vikings traveled to Bay City and Saginaw for their games, with not much outside practice under their belts. The Vikings had a rough go of it, especially being their first two games ever.

Grayling fell for Bay City John Glenn, 8-0, during the last week in March. The Vikings also lost to Saginaw Valley Lutheran, 10-0.

These teams have a lot of experience. Coach Jim Scott said. It is hard at the start when a new program is just beginning. This year's Grayling team is starting from scratch.

Soccer demands a lot of technical skills, Scott said. The girls have to learn the mental aspects of the game, along with the game of soccer being one of speed and conditioning.

There are 22 girls on the Grayling squad. According to Scott, this is a good-sized amount. Anywhere between 20 and 25 players is a nice size group.

Scott said he hopes in the future to have more girls out for the sport, so Grayling can develop a junior varsity program.

The group of 22 girls represents a good mix of every class, from freshmen to seniors. Scott pointed out that a handful of players will be graduating this year, so there will be openings for the eight graders coming up.

The goal for this year is to develop soccer players and become a competitive team, Scott said. The girls will improve, and hopefully the team will play better when facing the teams a second time around.

Scott, who resides in Roscommon, is handling varsity coaching duties for the first time, but he does have soccer coaching experience. Scott has coached club and youth soccer teams for 12 years.

Vikings prepare to hit the links

by Craig Hofman
Sports Writer

The Grayling High School girls golf team is preparing for the season on the middle school mezzanine, not on the golf course.

The team is practicing by hitting the ball into a net and practicing hand-eye coordination by hitting tennis balls.

"We are waiting for the range to open so our inexperienced players can get more practice and experience," said head coach Brenda Tuskan.

The Vikings feature eight players, but only one returning player -- Jamie Reed and three freshmen with course experience -- Marianne Vollmer, Kim Kosloski and Katie Southland.

Many of the others have never golfed before or have not been on a golf course.

"Our first meet is on Monday, April 21, at Midland going against Bay City John Glenn and Midland Dow. We need to teach the inexperienced players a lot, including scoring and rules and regulations," Tuskan said.

"Our goal is to have our top golfers compete respectfully, which they should do and to have the rest gain valuable experience," Tuskan said.

"This seasons goal is to have the new girls gain experience, get more comfortable and to have fun so everyone comes back and we have more experience next year," Tuskan said.

Other members of the Viking golf team are Megan Nuberger, Amy Stevenson and Erin McCarver who are freshmen. Sophomore Tracy Mowry rounds off the team.

Michigan history magazine seeks sports memories

You remember the moment: The winning touchdown, the knockout punch, the miracle performance -- the heartbreaking loss.

Whether you were on the field or in the stands, one moment rises above all others in your memory. The state's official history magazine hopes to tap into those memories for possible publication in an upcoming special issue on Michigan's sports heritage.

"Michigan History Magazine has the fine reputation of offering history that is fresh and colorful and that makes a personal connection to its readers," said Secretary of State Candice S. Miller. Michigan's official historian. "A special issue on sports wouldn't be complete without words from the athletes who made history and the fans who saw it happen."

Editor Roger Rosentreter says Michigan History Magazine is looking for recollections of team or individual sports at the amateur or professional level. The only requirement is that the recollection have a Michigan connection.

"A recollection could center on a Michigan-based team, an athlete from Michigan or a sporting event that took place in the state," Rosentreter said. "And we're keeping in mind that sometimes the most memorable moments occur on community sandlots and in high school gymnasiums."

If you want to submit a Michigan sports recollection for the September/October 1997 issue of Michigan History Magazine, Rosentreter suggests you follow these guidelines:

- Keep your recollection to 100 words or less;
  - Print legibly or type;
  - Do not send original photographs, photocopies are welcomed;
  - Include your name, address and daytime telephone number.
- Mail to: Recollections Editor, Michigan History Magazine, 717 W. Allegan Street, Lansing, MI 48918-1805. If you prefer, e-mail your recollection to: RosentreterR@sosmail.state.mi.us. Michigan History Magazine cannot acknowledge receipt of entries nor return them. Recollections must be received by May 15, 1997.

Weekly Update

Ten days left before April 26th, the opening day of trout, walleye and northern pike season. This opener is always the last Sat., in April at least in this area. In the mean time, the smelt should be starting to run. I always go to the upper for these tasty little fish, but there are many places in the lower that are just as good!

The first turkey season will be opening next week so there will be some turkey hunters around. You may not know this, but, if you don't have a turkey permit, you may not have a firearm in the woods during this season!

HOROSCOPES

For The Week Of April 13-19

ARIES

March 21-April 20

Be sure to stay on top of things and finish what you start. Letting things slide now could cause problems later. Your imagination soars and lets you escape a dull routine. Other people want to help you but are unsure how you'll respond, so be gracious and accept their advice in the spirit it is offered.

TAURUS

April 21-May 21

Take on added tasks and responsibilities; distractions will bubble to a minimum and you'll have plenty of time and energy to concentrate on important matters. Keep your plans simple for the immediate future; anything too elaborate could backfire. Do your research first.

GEMINI

May 22-June 21

You have time to catch up on things as well as enjoy your accomplishments. Do more listening than talking; idle talk can come back to haunt you if you're not careful. Your attitude improves, and you could be the one others turn to for support and guidance. Be helpful, but refuse to get drawn into a bad situation.

CANCER

June 22-July 22

Personal and professional pressures may be building up fast, but hang on—you will come out ahead in the end. Family and friends help you keep things in perspective. Your enthusiasm attracts others, and people will take your side. A quick trip or special night out will boost your spirits and recharge your batteries.

LEO

July 23-August 23

See yourself as others see you, and see others in a realistic light. Now is not the time to take things for granted. Make sure you read the fine print and check out the details. Draw inspiration and solutions from past successes to deal with current problems.

VIRGO

August 24-September 22

Trust your instincts. Someone you consider a friend may be more interested in getting something for nothing at your expense. Keep an eye on your budget. Don't neglect domestic chores and responsibilities. Loved ones will come through when they're needed most.

LIBRA

September 23-October 23

Be aware of what's going on around you—much is occurring behind the scenes, but there are clues. Do something romantic and fun. Now is the time to take the initiative and be bold. Travel and education, perhaps together, could be on the horizon. Catch up on phone calls and errands.

SCORPIO

October 24-November 22

You have more energy and enthusiasm, but don't get drawn in over your head. You may be frustrated with a friend who needs more help than you can provide. Know when to back away from a situation and cool down. Accept support and encouragement from a loved one who wants to offer it.

SAGITTARIUS

November 23-December 21

Make an effort to balance work and family. Going to extremes with either one will cause problems. Do things with a group rather than alone. Taking a moderate risk could lead to a big reward. Try to keep a secret, though it may be hard. You'll be glad you did.

CAPRICORN

December 22-January 20

Ask questions and be persistent to get the answers you need. Support from a friend or family member could have strings attached; be aware and decide if you want to pay that price. Older person offers helpful advice and younger person's enthusiasm proves contagious.

AQUARIUS

January 21-February 18

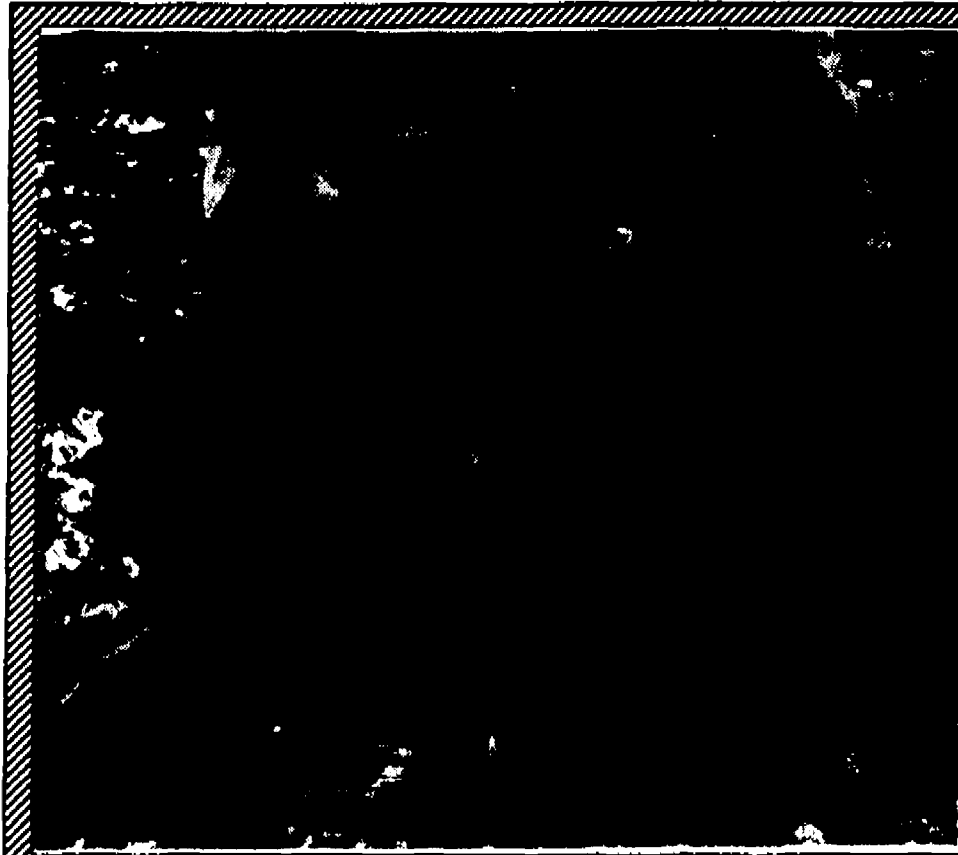

You have the time and the information to find the source of a problem and clear it up. Strive to see the big picture and refuse to get bogged down with small details. Don't be too proud to accept help from friends and family members. Take a small break and get away from things to collect your thoughts.

PISCES

February 19-March 20

You know the right thing to say and the right time to say it. Someone who has been opposing you comes over to your side. You could reunite with old friends. Listening to a friend or loved one who needs to talk could score points as well as give you a new perspective.

For Entertainment Purposes Only

Paul Revere

Today, when we want to send a message to someone very quickly, we have a lot of different ways to do so. We can call them on the phone, drive a car to go visit them, or even send them an e-mail. If there's a message meant for a great many people, then often it will be broadcast on television or on the radio. But in 1775, when an important message had to be sent quickly, there was only one way: Someone had to ride a horse very quickly and deliver the message in person.

On April 18, 1775, that's exactly what Paul Revere did. He rode from Charlestown to Lexington in Massachusetts, near Boston. He told everyone all the citizens that the British army was coming. Along the way, he shouted out the news, warning the colonial militia to prepare for a fight.

Paul Revere was successful in warning the colonists of the danger from the British troops. But his horse was awfully tired!

Real Estate Corner

with Debbie Bondar

of Century 21 River Country Real Estate

What goes into a successful settlement?

The closing is the final stage of a real estate transaction. The buyer turns over the purchase funds to the seller, who signs over ownership papers for the house. The closing usually takes place at the title company office. One of a Realtor's most important jobs is ensuring that this day goes smoothly.

Many things have to come together at one time for a successful closing. The agent must ensure that the agreed-upon repairs have been completed and that the terms of the purchase agreement have been met by both sides. The loan papers are sent to the title company by the lender, who must ensure that the loan is approved on time and that all of the papers are ready, including the title insurance binder, termite inspection reports and the buyer's prepaid insurance policy. The Realtor works to resolve any outstanding issues before the closing so that everyone can relax and enjoy the big day.
